

Caitlin Berger is a flutist based in Tiohtià:ke/Montreal. She enjoys organizing solo and chamber performance projects and teaching aspiring flutists. Exploring how music connects the personal to the universal and sharing those discoveries with audiences and students alike is her passion.

Caitlin recently celebrated her 12th studio recital with her 15 flute students this past December. She has also published movements of Friedrich Kuhlau's Three Duets for Two Flutes, Op. 10, No. 1 on her YouTube channel, alongside her musical collaborator Erin Smith.

Teaching has always been of interest to Caitlin, due to her background in tutoring while in music school and the excitement she consistently feels when talking about the flute. She's had the honour of teaching at the Fortissimo Academy of Music and Arts, the Just and Accessible Music School (of which she was a co-founder), and the Vanier Music School. She currently offers flute lessons exclusively through her private studio in NDG, which she created in 2016. As her current student Mary puts it, "[Caitlin's] focus is your growth, but never at the cost of the joy of playing." Caitlin also loves teaching flute sectionals and regularly works with wonderful students at Villa-Maria High School, Collège Esther-Blondin, and The Study.

Caitlin graduated from McGill University and the University of Montreal under the tutelage of Denis Bluteau, after studying with Heather Howes to obtain a DEC in music from Vanier College. She was a member of the UofM Orchestra, McGill's Contemporary Music Ensemble and Wind Orchestra, and the Montreal Youth Symphony Orchestra. She attended the Orford Music Academy three summers in a row, studying with renowned flutists Julien Beaudiment and Alexa Still. She is now a member of the board of directors of the West Island Youth Symphony Orchestra (WIYSO), the very first ensemble she ever played in.

Some of Caitlin's solo performance highlights include reaching the semi-finals of the first ever Concours de flûte de Paris in 2019; performing the Chaminade Concertino with WIYSO in 2013; and creating a digital concert entitled Alone Together: A COVID Concert for the Nextus Festival in 2021. During the COVID lockdowns, Caitlin created a monthly livestream series entitled Caitlin's Cozy Concerts, where she connected with her community through solo flute music and meaningful discussions. She went on to publish her first professional recording of Debussy's Syrinx on streaming platforms in 2022. Caitlin also adores playing with her friends and is currently working on performance projects with a brand new wind quintet. Caitlin plays on a silver Powell Conservatory flute, which she has happily owned since 2017.

Apart from teaching and performing, Caitlin thoroughly enjoys watching film and television. So much so, in fact, that she co-created a podcast called Watched It with one of her best friends, Jacqueline Noel, who she met at McGill. The art of storytelling, no matter the format, is a driving force in Caitlin's life. She remains committed to the field of arts and culture forever.
